Arbuckle Industries has provided exceptional video and production-related services since forming in 2007. The company has created an expansive range of media content in the realm of documentary, commercial and web-based material. The combination of skilled cinematography and comprehensive knowledge of the built environment, has kept the company at the forefront of architectural videography.

With a client base from New York City to California, the company is qualified and equipped for productions regardless of size, location and scope. Arbuckle pays close attention to the needs of each video and staffs individual projects accordingly.

The company has played a vital role in the branding and campaigning of public organizations, non-profits and small businesses. Some of their ongoing clients include Yamaha, Meetup, Etsy, Architect Magazine and Gitman Brothers. In 2010 Arbuckle played a vital role in drawing international attention to New York City's High Line park.

Arbuckle's first short film, Archiculture, was officially selected for the 2013 Newport Beach Film Festival and is currently on an international tour. The company's second film, Girls' Show, is being produced by Gill Holland and is slated to debut in late 2014.

The company has amassed an impressive list of interview subjects including: President Clinton, Arianna Huffington, David Byrne, Mayor Bloomberg, Zaha Hadid, Michael Eisner and Byron Janis.
